About This Book

This phonics and spelling workbook belongs to Crystal Heights International School. It was prepared by the school's Phonics Team to support systematic reading, spelling and vocabulary development for Grade 6 learners.

The materials are intended for use by teachers, parents and students of Crystal Heights International School. They form part of the school's structured literacy programme and are not the work of any single individual.

We hope these pages help every child grow in confidence as a reader and writer.

How to Use This Book

Every unit covers 7 stages. Stages 1 and 2 (Word List and Word Sort) share one combined page; Stages 3–7 each get their own page. A 7-dot progress bar appears at the top of every lesson page, and each stage keeps its own fixed color, so you always know exactly which stage you are on.

 Stage 1: Word List

 Stage 2: Word Sort

 Stage 3: Word Meaning

 Stage 4: Reading Fluency

 Stage 5: Proofreading

 Stage 6: Phonetic & Decoding

 Stage 7: Working Space

Review pages follow Units 4, 8 and 12, and a Final Review closes the book. The answer keys, glossary and index of sounds are at the back.

Table of Contents

Each of the 13 units below runs a full lesson set across 6 pages, covering all 7 stages. Reviews follow Units 4, 8 and 12, and a Final Review closes the book.

WORD LIST + WORD SORT

LESSON 5

STAGE 1 · WORD LIST (WORD STORE)

Unit 1: Double Consonants

struggle

middle sudden

common

supper

mirror

traffic

excellent

difficult

recommend

KEY IDEAS

- Double consonants often follow a short vowel sound: middle, sudden, common, supper.
- The doubled letters usually make a single sound, not two.
- In a few compound words, the double letters may make two sounds (fishhook, bookkeeper). These are rare.

STAGE 2 · ALPHABETICAL ORDER

These words all contain double consonants but do not split into neat sound groups. Alphabetize them.

Happening quickly and without warning
An evening meal
A piece of glass that reflects an image
Vehicles moving on a road

Reading Fluency – Unit 1

Read the passage aloud. Then find and circle every word that uses this unit’s pattern.

The Long Walk Home

The traffic was terrible that evening, and it was difficult to find a taxi. Kofi decided to walk. In the middle of the road, he saw an old woman carrying a heavy basket. "May I help you?" he asked. "It is no struggle for me." She smiled. "You are an excellent young man," she said. They walked together until they reached her house. "Come in for supper," she offered. Kofi looked in the mirror by the door. "I would not recommend it tonight," he said. And with a sudden burst of energy, he continued his walk.

Now read it again, aiming for a smooth, natural pace.

 Copy the entire story below, underlining each whole word that uses this unit’s pattern.

Proofreading – Unit 1

Eight words in the passage below are misspelled. Circle them and write the correct spellings on the lines.

Kofi had a dificult day at school, and everything seemed to go wrong from the start. In the midle of the morning, a suden noise made him drop his tray, and he had to struggle to pick up the mess before the bell rang. A teacher who saw him in the mirer by the door smiled kindly and said, "It is common to have a bad day, and your work is always exelent, so please do not worry." After school, the trafic near the gate was so heavy that the bus arrived very late, and Kofi decided to walk home instead. His mother had made his favourite supper, and she would recomend an early night. He agreed with her at once and was asleep before nine o'clock. The next morning, the rain had stopped, and Kofi felt much better. He waved to his friends as he crossed the yard, ready to try again.

The Village Clinic

The village clinic is small but decent. It offers a necessary service to everyone. On the surface, it may not look modern, but inside there is medicine, clean water, and a place to exercise. Each year the villagers celebrate the doctor's birthday with silence and respect, then burst into song. What is the difference between this clinic and a big city hospital? Here, everyone knows your name.

The Young Architect

Adwoa had the character of a real scientist, but her heart belonged to buildings. After school she would visit the local mechanic, who taught her the technique of fixing engines. "You have a gift," he said, rubbing his aching stomach. One evening, an orchestra came to her town. In the chaos of setting up the stage, the conductor dropped his baton near a clump of antique tiles. Adwoa quietly picked it up. The audience broke into applause. From that day her name was a kind of chronic legend in her small town.

Proofreading – Unit 3

Eight words in the passage below are misspelled. Circle them and write the correct spellings on the lines.

Willowbrook is a picturesk little town, but last Saturday there was kaos in its main street. The school korus was singing beside the fountain, and their voices seemed to echo off every wall. A crowd gathered, and a mechanic and an architect stopped to watch. Suddenly, a boy with a terrible stomak ache fainted on the pavement. A man from the kemist's shop rushed to help him, using a simple tecnique he had learned years ago, and soon the boy was smiling again. Everyone showed real karacter that day. Later, the mayor fixed a shiny plaque to the door of the old boutik to thank them, and the whole town felt proud of its unique little community. The children cheered, and the choir sang once more as the sun set over the hills. Nobody in Willowbrook will forget that afternoon.

The Bridge on the Journey

On a long journey through the mountains, a generous farmer stopped his engine at a narrow bridge. A young girl had fallen and hurt her leg. "This is an urgent injury," the farmer said. "We must act at once." He adjusted his jacket, imagined the safest route, and carried her across. The majority of the villagers later gave him a badge of honour. His only pledge was this: never dodge a chance to help.

Proofreading – Unit 4

Eight words in the passage below are misspelled. Circle them and write the correct spellings on the lines.

The journey to the mountain village was long and tiring. The majority of the travellers were happy, but one boy felt jealous of the rider who sat at the front of the bus. Halfway there, the engine began to smoke, and the driver made an urgent call for help. A passenger who had some knowledge of machines managed to fix it quickly, though he suffered a small injury to his hand. The driver was a generous man and gave him a warm meal. Nobody wanted to cross the narrow bridge in the dark, so we stayed the night in the village. I could not imagine a better adventure, and there was never any real danger. Next time, I will adjust my backpack so that it feels lighter. In the morning, the driver thanked everyone for their patience and waved as we left the village.

The Flawless Strawberry Pie

In early autumn, the whole audience gathered for the village baking contest. A young lawyer named Selina stepped forward, holding a drawing of her famous strawberry pie. "I made it because my grandmother taught me," she said, adjusting her apron awkwardly. When the judges tasted it, there was a burst of applause. The pie was flawless. One afternoon, the wind began to roar, and the boat was pushed forwerd across the waves. He said that such a storm was not ordinery for that time of year. The rope became coarse and wet in his hands, and by evening his voice was hoarce from shouting to the crew. To keep them calm, he told them the storry of his father, who had once been called to cort after a storm. "Fresh water is a precious resorce," he said, "so do not waste it." They poured what was left into a bucket and shared it. By morning, the sea had settled. Captain Hale steered the boat home, and the crew slept soundly. The village children ran down to the harbour to greet them.

The town council met on Monday to discuss the new park. The mayor will anounce the plan tomorrow, and the town will emploi twenty workers to build it. A large amont of money has been set aside, and the treasurer must keep a careful acount of every cost. The council will also apoint a manager to lead the team. Last year the field was empty and dry, and children had nowhere to play. Heavy rain could distroy the young grass, so the workers must protect the soil from too much moisure. Once it is finished, the children will enjoy the swings and the slide, and the whole town will be joyful about the news. The mayor says the park will be open by the end of the summer. Volunteers have already offerred to plant flowers along the path.

KEY IDEAS

- Some words contain a letter that is written but not pronounced.
- Common silent letters include: k before n (knock), w before r (wrinkle), h in ghost and rhythm, t in castle, listen, whistle, b in subtle, doubt, n in condemn, s in island, and g in gnome.
- English spelling often keeps the silent letter because it shows the word's origin in French, Latin, or Greek.

STAGE 2 · ALPHABETICAL ORDER

These words each contain a silent letter, but the silent letter differs from word to word. Alphabetize them. Then circle the silent letter in each word.

The Island Castle

On a small island off the coast stood an old castle. Every night travellers would knock on its heavy door. Some said a ghost lived there. Others whispered that the rhythm of drums could be heard at midnight. "Listen carefully," said the old gatekeeper, with a subtle smile. "The wind has its own whistle." He would not condemn the rumours, nor would he confirm them. A small gnome carved in stone sat by the door — and no one doubted the legends that gathered around it.

Now read it again, aiming for a smooth, natural pace.

Proofreading – Unit 8

Eight words in the passage below are misspelled. Circle them and write the correct spellings on the lines.

On a quiet island stood an ancient casle that nobody dared to enter. Villagers said a gost lived inside, and nobody would nock on its heavy door. One evening, Mira climbed the hill with a lantern. She had no doubt that the stories were false. Inside, she heard a rythm of soft tapping and a suttle whistle. She began to lisen carefully. In a dusty corner sat a stone gnome holding a tiny lantern of its own. The old caretaker, with a deep rinkle across his forehead, told her not to condem the villagers for being afraid. "Fear grows in the dark," he said, "but it shrinks in the light." Mira nodded and walked home. As she walked down the hill, the lantern swung gently in her hand, and the stars appeared one by one. The next day, the whole village visited the castle together.

The Interesting Museum

The museum was quiet, except for the slow footsteps of visitors. In one corner stood a stone elephant. Nearby, a woman in a green vegetable apron was describing an old medicine bottle. "It is obvious," she said, "that this was made to celebrate a great victory." A small animal figure sat on a separate shelf. Beside it, an orchestra played softly. A hint of cinnamon drifted through the air. Above everything hung a sign: The Mystery of the Lost Kingdom. Everyone was confident they had seen something they would never forget.

Our class visited the zoo to celebrate the end of term. The first animal we saw was an elephant, and it was so big that it was obvious why everyone stopped to stare. The keeper, who seemed very confadent, told us an intresting story about how the zoo prepares its food. Every day, the vegtable scraps from the kitchen are kept seperate from the meat. At lunch, we ate buns flavoured with cinamon, and a small orkestra played near the gate. A puzzle remained, though: where had the golden monkey gone? It was a mistery that nobody could solve. Luckily, nobody needed any medicine, and we all went home happy and tired. The keeper waved goodbye at the gate, and the class sang all the way back to school. Our teacher said we could write about the trip on Monday.

The Hottest Day

It was the hottest day of the year. Kofi was running home when he stopped suddenly. A stray dog had followed him — bigger than any he had seen. He had planned to study, but the dog preferred to sit at his feet. "What has occurred?" his mother asked. "It was at the beginning of the road," Kofi replied. "I have not forgotten how to help a friend." His mother smiled and referred to the old saying: kindness is always preferred.

It was the hottest day of the year, and the football team was runing laps around the field. The coach had planed a hard practice, but the begining of it was slow because the boys were tired. Then a storm stoped play, and the players hurried inside. Mia, who has always preferred training in the rain, was disappointed. She refered to her notes, which said the team must get bigger and stronger before the final. A small mistake occurred when the whistle was left behind, and it was forgotten until the next morning. The coach laughed and promised to bring two whistles next time, and the team cheered. On Monday, the players arrived early, and every one of them had a whistle in his bag. The coach smiled and said it was the best practice of the season.

KEY IDEAS

1. Drop the e to add a suffix starting with a vowel.

write + ing = writing · take + ing = taking · hope + ing = hoping

2. Drop the e to add y.

sauce + y = saucy · nose + y = nosy

3. To add -ly to a word ending in le, usually drop the le.

able + ly = ably

Watch out: hope + ing = hoping (drop e) but hope + ful = hopeful (keep e, because the suffix starts with a consonant).

On Saturday, the whole village met to clean the community garden. It began as a peaceful morning, with everyone agreeing on the plan. The arrangement of the rows was decided first, and the farmers began hoeing the hard soil. The children watched every movment with great excitment. A girl with a gracful walk carried the seeds from row to row. Then, through carelesness, someone dropped a bucket, and a puddle spread across the path. To everyone's amazment, the mud dried in minutes because the weather in that valley is so changable. By sunset, every row was planted, and the villagers went home tired but happy. The next weekend, the neighbours returned with more tools and a picnic lunch to share. The garden is now the pride of the village, and visitors often stop to admire it.

Notes on Sort Criteria

Different patterns use different sorting criteria. Use the criterion that genuinely divides the words into meaningful groups:

- Spelling-letter grouping (Units 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 13): sort by which letter or letters spell the target sound.
- Alphabetical order (Units 1, 8, 9): used when the words share the same sound or rule and cannot be split into meaningful sound groups. This also teaches dictionary skills.
- Word analysis (Units 10, 11, 12): sort by which suffix or spelling rule applies.
